

Across

7. Which muscle is located below the iliotibial band?
8. A _____ approach to a distal radius ORIF is often performed through an incision centered over the flexor carpi radialis.
11. To fill a defect in bone during an ORIF, the surgeon may request bone that has been donated. This type of bone is called:
12. This external fixator may be used as an alternative to ORIF.

Down

1. Which type of screw gives the best fixation?
2. A “nightstick” fracture can require an ORIF to which bone?
3. What is the outer layer of bone known as that provides blood supply to the cortex?
4. The most commonly fractured carpal bone is:
5. An important piece of equipment used in verifying the placement of plates and screws is:
6. Which stage of bone healing is bypassed when compression plates are used?
9. Which surgical instrument would be used to “strip” the periosteum?
10. _____ compression may or may not be used in plating of a fracture.

